Join Catherine Ross, PhD, Director of the Wake Forest University Teaching and Learning Center for the following workshops intended for Medical Student Educators.

In this interactive workshop, participants will engage in reflecting on their own assessment needs, on how best to design assessments for students in their contexts, and on how to give feedback to ensure that learning is promoted and student motivation is engaged.

Part 1: Assessment of Learning
• Describe the role of assessment and feedback in student learning
• Design/choose appropriate assessment tools to accurately assess learners’ skills

Thursday, October 8, Noon-1pm   Babcock Auditorium
To register email facultyaffairs@wakehealth.edu

Part 2: Feedback to Learners
• Differentiate between feedback and evaluation.
• State the purpose of feedback in the traditional classroom and in a clinical setting
• Identify the key principles in how to give effective feedback to learners to improve performance. Explain the parts of a feedback session

Thursday, October 22, Noon-1pm   Babcock Auditorium
To register email facultyaffairs@wakehealth.edu

Lunch provided. Please register so that we can cater appropriately.